This just means I have to file the documents myself. I wanted these submitted for the judge to read regarding the motion to withdraw because it continues information about my attorneys abusing me. I asked in the phone call that this be submitted to the court and efiled .. You declined because you were filing this motion.

Now I will include a copy of this email and a letter on what Jennifer told me.

Good Afternoon,

Mr. Giffen I have followed your instructions to the letter. During your last conversation with me you informed me that you felt there was a conflict of interest and you had concerns about me representing you based on my military/correctional officer background. I have filed a motion to withdraw as your counsel. I won't be taking any further action until I receive a ruling from the court on that motion. You see, it would be a violation of my ethical responsibilities if I were to continue representing you after you told me you didn't want me on the case. I ask for your patience. I'm sure the court will provide a ruling on this issue and then we'll take the appropriate steps after that. Thank you.

We tried to submit my letter to the court and the court intructed me it was your duty and until the judge dismissed you it was your job. Stop defying my instruction and efile or mail the letter as I requested. The court will have it on the record and all the files for them to act on. Subsequently it will be there for any appeals.

You don't really get the choice to defy your clients requests unless you are committing legal malpractice. So far you have defied repeated requests for basic work and indicated a future of continuing to defy requests. Whether it was submitting this letter to the court of hiring the expert investigator I picked out even though she is better than your recommendations.
